BANDITS AT BAY IN WOODS

MANCHESTER, N. H., June 13.—Three score of police, deputies and citizens from Merrimac River cities and towns are in hot pursuit, afoot and in automobiles, of a gang of four burglars who held up Special Officer Charles Moody and Joseph Descateau of Reed's Ferry, four miles below here, blew the safe in the village post office six times with dynamite, secured money and stamps, but missed $200 in cash, and then escaped in a rowboat across the river.

The burglars are armed and the pursuing police and citizens are prepared for a desperate fight if the fugitives are overtaken.

It is thought, from the liberal use of dynamite, the boldness of the break and other clues, that the gang is the same one which dynamited the postoffice safe at Londonderry two weeks ago and made off with $1,500.

The coolness of the gang, especially in the way its lookout held up Moody and Descateau at the point of a revolver, and made them stand in a shed while the safe was robbed, has aroused the police and county authorities to high pitch of exasperation. The police and deputies feel that their authority is being flouted in an impudent, devil-may-care fashion.

All the officers in pursuit are well armed and willing to exchange shot for shot with the burglars.

SAW FLASH OF BLAST.

Reed's Ferry is a village on the river, between here and Nashua. At 1:30 a. m. today Arthur Tremblay, returning from a dance, sat down on the steps of a house opposite the village postoffice to rest. He saw a flash from the postoffice, then heard an explosion. He awakened the occupant of the house. They watched. A moment later came another flash and explosion.

There was a telephone in the house. The Manchester and Nashua police were notified that burglars were in Reed's Ferry postoffice.

Sergeants Foye, Lynch and Robitaille and Patrolman Farrell started from here in an automobile, four miles to go. Up from Nashua, fourteen miles below, started Deputy Chief Kimball and Patrolman Halliday.

Meanwhile Tremblay had run down the road and found Special Officer Moody, who picked up Joe Descateau and came back toward the postoffice. Neither Moody nor Descateau was armed.

As the special and his companion came around the corner of the postoffice building they were met by a stocky man in a mask, who shoved an automatic revolver within smelling distance, and said: "Hands up! Hands up! Don't turn up. Then he said: "Youse back into the shed."

ESCAPE ACROSS RIVER.

There is a shed next to the postoffice. Moody and Descateau backed

"CRUEL" HUSBAND

What D'ye Mean Cruel? ATE WITH HIS KNIFE

A wife may object (and lots of 'em would) to her husband's acting in the following manner: Eating with his knife.

Going to bed with his clothes on.

Neglecting to bathe.

BUT she'll have to put up with it if all the courts follow the rule of a Los Angeles judge, who said to a woman who sought divorce on the grounds cited:

"Perhaps his deportment did grate on you, but that's not what the law calls cruelty. I cannot help you."

Mt. Lassen Again in Terrific Eruption

CHICAGO, Calif., June 13.—The second terrific eruption of Mount Lassen in twenty-four hours began this morning. Forestry men expressed the belief that the mountain is getting ready to "blow its head off." At 6 o'clock great columns of dense black smoke and ashes shot up from three separate parts of the new crater. Ashes fell in mineral seventeen miles away. The fumes of sulphur are strong, and the people are preparing to leave.

GUARD FOR ROOSEVELT IN LONDON

LONDON, June 13.—Guarded from militant suffragettes by Scotland Yard detectives, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, former President of the United States, arrived here today from Madrid, where he attended the wedding of his son, Kermit Roosevelt, to Miss Belle Willard, daughter of Ambassador Willard. Colonel Roosevelt was accompanied by his daughter Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, and his cousin, Philip J. Roosevelt of New York. On the way from the English Channel to London the Archbishop of Canterbury was a passenger on the same boat train with the Colonel.

The prelate cordially greeted the ex-President and asked anxiously after the condition of his health.

"I never felt better in my life," declared the American statesman.

MET BY AMBASSADOR.

The Roosevelt party was met at the Charing Cross railway station by Walter H. Page, the American Ambassador, the staff of the American embassy and by Arthur Hamilton Lee, a Unionist member of Parliament, whose guest Colonel Roosevelt will be over the week-end.

From the station the American was driven to the residence of Mr. Lee, where he granted an audience to the newspaper men. In answer to a shower of questions, the colonel said:

"I cannot discuss politics, nor am I at liberty to say anything further about my South American discoveries. I think I covered all points in my statement issued in Paris last night.

"My visit to England is purely a social and scientific one. I have come here to lecture before the Royal Geographical Society on the subject of my discoveries and adventures in Brazil, and also to meet friends."

The Colonel was questioned on every possible object from the controversy aroused in connection with his discovery of a river in Brazil to the passage by the American Senate of the Panama tolls exemption repeal bill and the prospects of his candidacy for the Governship of New York State.

His reply in nearly every instance was: "I have nothing to say," or "No, you may not expect a statement from me," which was his answer as to whether he was going to issue a statement on the subject of the governship.

The chief remark made by the former President at the reception to the press was: "Gentlemen, I am half full of cinders from thirty-six hours of travelling and my chief desire is to get into a bath room."

GEOGRAPHICAL ADDRESS.

Among the colonel's fellow passengers was Dr. John Scott Keltie, secretary of the Royal Geographical Society, who brought with him a number of

MAD MAN AMUCK ON HUB LINER

PONTA DELGADA, Azores, June 13.—Twenty-five persons suffering from wounds inflicted by an insane steerage passenger were in the hospital of the liner Canopic, bound from Boston to Naples, when she arrived here today. Five of the wounded passengers were so badly hurt that they will probably die.

An Italian steerage passenger, going suddenly insane, ran among the passengers brandishing a long knife. With maniacal strength he fought off the seamen who tried to subdue him and dashed among the terrified passengers.

For hours the maniac held the ship in a panic while frightened men and women huddled together too badly frightened to attempt to overpower the man. Finally the maniac was struck over the head from behind and put in irons.

FOUR ARE HURT AT BIG PIER

One of the big freight elevators at the Commonwealth Pier ran amuck this morning. With four men aboard, it was ascending from the first to the second floor, when the electric controller refused to work.

The elevator proceeded upward toward the roof, and eight feet above the second floor, crashed through the grating at the roof of the shaft. The upper part of the elevator was smashed, the mechanism was jammed and the elevator shaft was shattered.

Of the four men in the car, all were somewhat injured and two were forced to go home, though the other two remained at work. They escaped from the wrecked car by crawling out through the shattered timbers.

Besides the elevator man, the men in the car were Patrick Griffin, Michael Brodrick and Michael Nee. When the elevator struck the grating they were thrown flat on their backs in the car, and no escaped more serious injury, for the top of the car was crushed like the shell of an egg.

DOUGLAS, READY TO RETURN TO NEWARK, CRIES 'MY MARJORY'

Mrs. Kenneth Douglas, formerly Marjory Stoneman, Wellesley graduate, deserted by husband, who is taken from Boston to Newark, N. J., to face serious charges.

Newark police officers were expected in Boston today to take Kenneth D. Douglas, who married, then abandoned, Marjory Stoneman, Wellesley 1912, back to Newark to face serious charges made against him there. He is accused of perjury in securing his marriage license, and of obtaining money on false pretences.

Douglas broke down completely in the Charles street jail when he heard that his bride of six weeks in Newark had declared she was "through with Mr. Douglas forever." He cried like a child for "My Marjory," and vowed that she was his wife, legally. There had been some question whether he was divorced from a previous wife. He insisted that he was.

Douglas was held in $1,600 bonds yesterday until today. It is possible he will be charged with polygamy when he returns to Newark. He waived extradition.

UNDER DOCTOR'S CARE.

Douglas' breakdown was so complete that a doctor was called. The physician wanted to send him to the Psychopathic Hospital for examination, but the prison officials refused to do this. They believe Douglas is simply a clever actor, trying to lay the ground work for an insanity defence, and point out that he has completely fooled his acquaintances wherever he has gone, posing as a religious publicist and social service worker.

Douglas was instead sent to the City Prison and examined. The doctors there found he was under great nervous strain and in poor physical condition, but showed no signs of real irrationality.

Douglas' picture, it is said, is in the local Rogues' Gallery as the result of an old larceny case, but no charges pending here will be waived so that he may return to Newark to have the tangle there straightened out.

REPULSE REBELS AT MAZATLAN

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 13.—Advices received here today from Mazatlan said that the Mexican troopship Guerrero engaged in battle with the Constitutionalist armed steamer Culiacan near Guaymas last night and finally succeeded in sinking the rebel ship. The number of casualties, if any, was not given. A shell from a Constitutionalist battery burst in a hospital in Mazatlan.

TORREON, Mexico, June 13.—General Villa today began to entrain the main body of his army toward Zacatecas. The entraining of an army of 17,000 men will take ten days.

Villa's intention is to push the campaign toward Mexico City with all possible dispatch. He does not believe there will be any fighting in Zacatecas or at Aguas Calientes, but his reports indicate the Federals will make a desperate stand at San Luis Potosi.

When asked whether he would agree to the cessation of hostilities he replied:

"That would be absurd, and the mediators know it. But it is not for me to express an opinion; ask General Carranza."

"Do you not take an interest in this, General?"

"Yes, I keep one eye on Washington and the other on Mexico City. I have full reliance upon your President. I know that he will see that justice is done. I am sure that when the mediators' decision is reached President Wilson will see that our wishes are carried out."

General Villa then laughed. "I cannot see why these mediators favor Huerta so. Huerta must have promised them something.

"It is my intention, after we get started, to push the campaign Southward and not stop until we reach the gates of Mexico City. I know it will be a hard job. Huerta has not received boat loads of ammunition for nothing, so I will not express an opinion as to the outcome of our march, but I will say that

TRAIL IN CHELSEA MURDER MYSTERY LEADS TO EUROPE

The trail of the mystery surrounding the discovery of a man, apparently slain as he slept, beneath the porch of a house at No. 180 Arlington street, Chelsea, is expected to lead to police hunt through Europe, Chelsea officials declared today.

One theory is that the slain man was one of three boarders in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Manoogian, who moved from the house May 1 last. Efforts will be made to locate the Manoogians in Hungary, to see if their testimony will aid in revealing the identity of the victim and the manner of his death.

TRACE WATERTOWN CLEW.

A clew developed in Watertown is that the body may be that of Thomas Demistroff, who disappeared from that town on March 7. He was a Bulgarian, about forty-eight, who lived at No. 28 Melindy avenue, East Watertown. He was given to carrying about large sums of money, sometimes said to amount to $2,000.

The description of Demistroff answers in detail the description of the man whose body was found in Chelsea. He weighed about 130 pounds and was about five feet seven inches tall. Demistroff had often been warned by his friends and by policemen it was dangerous to carry such a large sum of money.

No one is able to think of any identifying marks which might aid in ascertaining if the body is that of the missing Bulgarian. The Watertown police and acquaintances of Demistroff are preparing to aid the Chelsea police in establishing the identity of the victim.

VISIT CHELSEA HOUSE.

Several Chelsea Armenians said today they had seen in an Armenian paper that an Armenian or Bulgarian who worked in the mills in East Watertown had disappeared and that he had from $2,200 to $2,500 in his possession.

When the Manoogians left for Europe they were accompanied by a lodger named Ardeshir Brodikian. Mrs. Jennie Oppenheim, who lives in another part of the house, received a postcard, with a picture of the steamer Arabic on one side and the following on the address side: "I write you this card to say we are all well. Went Liverpool. Please give next cards to Armenian people in your house." The card was signed "Israel Manoogian" and bears a Queenstown postmark. The card was received early in June.

The police say an attempt was made to conceal the knowledge of the departure of Brodikian. Mrs. Manoogian told Mrs. Oppenheim Brodikian was going to board with friends in Chelsea and that she and her husband were going to Hungary alone. Just before leaving Manoogian is said by the police to have drawn $900 from Chelsea banks.

MRS. FISHER, HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT, IS NOW OUT OF DANGER

Mrs. "Bud" Fisher, wife of the creator of "Mutt and Jeff," who is recovering from injuries in an auto accident, and picture of the wrecked car under which she was pinned.

NEW YORK, June 13.—At Fordham Hospital today it was announced that Mrs. "Bud" Fisher, wife of the famous cartoonist and who was dangerously injured in an automobile collision two days ago, is practically out of danger.

Mrs. Fisher was pinned under the car, which turned turtle after the collision. The gasoline tank caught fire and she was dragged from beneath the car only just in time to save her from the flames. She had been riding with friends. "Bud" was notified by telephone of the accident, and reached the hospital almost as soon as she.

Examination disclosed that Mrs. Fisher had received painful bruises and cuts, and that her chest appeared to be crushed in. She lay for hours unconscious, but yesterday began to rally, and today the hospital authorities declared that barring complications, she will recover.

Mrs. Fisher is a vaudeville singer, and she and "Bud" often appeared at the same performance, he drawing his "Mutt'n Jeff" cartoons, and she singing. They were in Boston about two weeks ago, appearing at Keith's Theatre.

NOW 'SANDALS' SAWYER GOES TO AID OF POLICE

"Sandals" Sawyer, who succeeded "Socrates" Simpson as the sartorial Socrates of the State House, now surges to the surface with a singular scheme to soothe the suffering servants of the people during the sultry season.

Mr. Sawyer, otherwise Representative Roland D. Sawyer, boasts that his own clothing, including sandals, weighs only three and three-fourths pounds, and will introduce a bill to give to policemen, motormen, conductors and other uniformed sufferers from the heat a similar relief. The bill reads:

Sec. 1. The Commonwealth shall on the first day of June in each year provide, free of charge, a Summer uniform to each member of its park police or other State police that do active service in the city. Such uniform shall consist of a helmet or cap, not exceeding in weight six ounces; and of a coat and trousers, not exceeding in weight three and a half pounds. Officers may wear this uniform at their discretion between June 1 and September 1; and, beyond a belt and badge, the Commonwealth prescribes no regulation as to the dress of the officer while on duty.

Sec. 2. Cities and towns within the Commonwealth that maintain police officers who are required to appear in a stated uniform, and railroad or other corporations that require men to wear a stated uniform while at work, shall on June 1 of each year provide each officer or employee with a Summer uniform, the same shall be furnished without cost to the officer or employe, and shall consist of a cap or helmet not to weigh over six ounces; and of a coat and trousers, the same not to weigh over three and a half pounds. Each officer or employe may wear this uniform at his discretion between June 1 and September 1, and he shall be subject to no other requirements in matters of dress, unless it be an official badge, buttons or belt.

'FURIES' FIGHT WITH POLICE IN LONDON STREET

LONDON, June 13.—Another battle between militant "furies" and the police was fought in the streets of London today, when the "bobbies" intercepted a mob of suffragettes who were marching upon the International Horse Show in the Olympia Stadium.

The leaders of the suffrage procession refused to turn back when ordered to do so, declaring that they would impress their demands for the ballot upon the rich people attending the Horse Show near Albert Hall. Fighting broke out when policemen began using force to disperse the mob. Soon a free-for-all fight was raging in the street, with sticks and stones flying through the air.

After a sharp conflict the women were put to flight, a number of them taking refuge in Albert Hall, where the weekly meeting of the militants is held.

A lone suffragette went upon a rampage at Birmingham and smashed the windows in the Labor Exchange. The woman fought with the police when arrested and had nearly all her clothing torn off before she was dragged off to a police station. She gave her name as "Miss Haley."

Another suffragette named Miss Mitchell enlivened court proceedings here shortly after the Haley woman was locked up. Miss Mitchell was arraigned charged with inciting crime in an inflammatory speech.

The woman became hysterical in court, holding up the proceedings with her shouted imprecations. She was held for trial in $5,000 bail.

Hold Woman and Man on Charges by Girl in Hospital

Mrs. Mary I. Lewis and John McClintock were arraigned in the Somerville courts today, she charged with performing an illegal operation and he with being an accessory, and each was held in $5,000 till June 22.

The arrests were the results of statements made by Marion C. Crowley, said to have been a telephone operator, who is on the dangerous list at the Frost Hospital in Chelsea.

Mrs. Lewis, fifty-four, a professional nurse for years, was arrested just after midnight at her home, No. 356 Somerville avenue. Later the police went to No. 56 West Newton street, Boston, and arrested McClintock. McClintock is a dry goods salesman.

Miss Crowley, who is eighteen years old, lives at No. 32 Crystal Cove avenue, Revere.

MAMMOTHS IN BARNUM CIRCUS ELEPHANT HERD

Two mammoths are in the herd of forty elephants which Barnum's Circus is bringing to Boston tomorrow. These elephants are so much larger than any others that the circus people declare they rival the extinct mammoth in size.

The elephants are carried in a specially constructed car. The car doors are ten feet high, which forces the elephants to stoop as they step out upon the descending plank. The mammoths, however, are so huge that they cannot get out until the gang plank is taken away.

After all the other elephants are out the two monsters drop to their knees and wriggling their great bodies forward slowly manage to get their front feet out and upon the ground. The floor of the car is five feet above the railroad ties, but this does not prevent them from making solid earth without mishap. Once their forefeet are on the ground they drag their bodies forward, allowing their hind legs to drag along the car floor. In this way they soon get one hind foot out and the rest is easy. That they take pride in this feat is evident, for as soon as it is achieved they begin to trumpet and wave their trunks.

There will be five herds of elephants in the street parade, which will leave the show grounds about 10 o'clock Monday. It takes five special trains to bring the circus here. Seven hundred horses are among the animal transportation problems.

Ambassador Page Talks on the Curse of Riches in the U. S.

LONDON, June 13.—Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador, addressing the Royal Institution on "Some Aspects of American Democracy," combatted the view that it was in danger of becoming a plutocracy by surrendering political power to the organized rich.

"So far the truth is this," Mr. Page said. "The democracy lately has shown itself less than fair to the rich, who are too easily subjected to suspicion among us.

"The fact that a man is rich gives him no help toward public advancement. Among our very richest men there is hardly one that could be elected to the humblest public office."

To Look and Feel Bright in Hot Weather

This is the season when she would have the loveable complexion Nature meant him to be—thoughts to mercolized wax, the fine found of the summer girl. Nothing so effectually removes the scaling effects of sun, wind, dust and dirt. The wax literally eats away the scarfed, discolored, freckled, withered or sallow cuticle, bringing forth a fair, soft, pink, clear, soft and girlishly beautiful, lie also the pores, removing blackheads and increasing the skin's breathing capacity. An ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any druggists, applied nightly like cold cream, and washed off morning, will gradually improve the worst complexion.

When you want the best and you want it freckle up for the afternoon or evening, settle the matter by a letter to Mercolized Wax Co., Chicago, Ill., enclosing in a half dollar (with name and address) and a large unmailable box of the wax will be sent you by return mail. It is a delightful toilet requisite, gives the greatest satisfaction.

THAW CHARGES JEROME BROKE FAITH IN PLEA

GORHAM, N. H., June 13.—Harry K. Thaw is much put out over the failure of his proposed transfer from New Hampshire to Pennsylvania in the custody of a United States marshal.

Jerome and former Governor W. A. Stone, counsel for Thaw, failed to agree on the joint petition and, instead of lending his aid to the move, Jerome filed a brief with the Supreme Court protesting the admission of Thaw to bail, "simply because it is reasonably probable he will not again commit acts of violence."

Thaw said today:

THAW DISCUSSES CASE.

"I am reluctant to commeut upon the extraordinary advertising indulged in by the New York lawyers. We realize the humiliation when gentlemen representing the New York Attorney-General's office give interviews about a matter on the eve of its presentation before the United States Supreme Court, instead of exercising self-control and keeping silent. It was not only their privilege them to rush into print, but what they said was inaccurate.

"We are willing to accept the proposal. I heard of it from one of their lawyers, and requested one of mine to inform Jerome we would agree not to take bail at present, but be satisfied with that. Governor Stone was dubious of its expediency, for the Supreme Court's rule 34, paragraph 3, distinctly provides 'Pending an appeal from the final decision of any court or judge discharging the prisoner he shall be enlarged upon recognizance with surety for appearance to answer the judgment of the Appellate Court, except where for special reasons sureties ought not to be required.'

"WILLING TO CONCEDE."

"Consequently I should have been bailed or released without bail without further delay, for Attorney-Generals against us are no more important than Attorney-Generals in other habeas corpus proceedings, and I am no more important than any one else charged with a conspiracy involving moral turpitude.

"The Supreme Court would not break its own rules on account of any of us, so we were favoring Mr. Jerome in this. Governor Stone is inclined to think we should have asked for our rights at once, but I was willing to let the other side down easy and accept this agreement for the Summer."

The young inventor claims that the flying boat will make flying practically safe.

GOOGINS JOKED THE DIVORCE SLEUTHS WHO WERE WATCHING HIM

Mrs. Stanley T. Googins, the hearing of whose divorce suit will be resumed Monday.

A "Sleuth-Comedy" will be the burden of the testimony of Stanley T. Googins, prominent Winthrop yachtsman, when he takes the stand Monday to defend the divorce suit brought by his wife, it was expected today.

Mrs. Googins and amateur and professional detectives have testified to following Googins, and have asserted they saw him call at the house of Miss Elizabeth Cormerais, on Harvard street, Brookline, and pass the evening there.

Mrs. Googins testified, and the detectives agreed, that they saw silhouettes of her husband on an upstairs window blind, and that Miss Cormerais came to the door in a "very thin and very frilly cream-colored nightgown, with little underneath," to bid Mr. Googins good night.

But Googins will tell, it is declared, the other side of the picture. He will tell how he detected the detectives, and how he turned the tables, following them when they thought they were following him. He will tell how they disguised themselves by changing their hats—wearing now a derby, now a yachting cap, and again a soft hat.

He is expected to testify that occasionally he tapped them on the shoulder and warned them to go change their hats as their faces were getting too familiar to him.

Googins kept a diary during his married life, and this diary is expected to figure in the case. He claims Mrs. Googins nagged him almost from the time of their marriage. Mrs. Googins yesterday on the witness stand admitted that she "went through his pockets almost every day after we were married."

Googins will claim nagging drove him from home.

Mrs. Broadhurst, Deserted, Sues

NEW YORK, June 13.—Mrs. Ida Raymond Broadhurst, wife of George Broadhurst, the playwright, appeared before Justice Giegerich and asked for a decree of separation on the ground of abandonment. Her husband did not defend the case. Mrs. Broadhurst testified she married the playwright in 1897, when he was a clerk on the Chicago Board of Trade and she was employed as a saleswoman. One morning, sixteen years after the marriage, Broadhurst left home and never returned.

Morality for Men --and for Women

Civilization says that women must keep to the straight path, or be degraded, outcast forever.

Man may wander as he pleases, spend years in vicious living, reform when he pleases and be as respectable as the woman who all her life has lived morally.

And the men for whose convenience vice is established on a commercial basis alone make the laws for this system.

Such is the theme of the powerful and vital editorial in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

It is an editorial for every man and woman to read and ponder.

It deals with a situation which at this time more than ever before is being impressed upon the minds of men and women, must be faced and dealt with.

We advise everybody who sees these few lines to read this editorial

'SIR JAMES' IS BACK; FAILED TO SEE WALSH

"Sir James and Lady Carlton" are back in Boston. They are registered again at the Touraine. Their money is being spent generously, the waiters and bellhops are happy once more, but the English visitors fail to explain yet just how they are "Knight" and "lady."

"It's a blooming shame," says "Sir James," "that an English gentleman and his lady can't come to Boston without at once having people suspicious and getting those big lines in the papers. I am going to the North Shore, and if I find that these newspaper articles have injured my lady's health, I'll bring suit for damages."

Mayor Curley is still skeptical of "Sir James." The Mayor's doubts grew when information came from England that the Carltons had recently sold $2,500 worth of family plate and intended summering in America. Nothing was added from England to verify Carlton's claim to being a knight.

Governor Walsh came near doing the honors as head of the State to "Sir James and Lady." Written on hotel stationery and enclosing two printed calling cards, was this note received by secretaries of the Governor:

Hotel Touraine, June 10, 1914.

Sir James and Lady Carlton present their compliments to His Excellency and trust that they will have the pleasure of meeting His Excellency during their short stay in Boston.

Respectfully yours,

JAMES CARLTON, R. Sc.

Suspicion was aroused by the appearance of cards and writing paper, so the communication was filed without even going to the Governor.

"Sir James" persists that he is to invest money in New England enterprises. He declares that he is negotiating for a home in Brookline. More definite information on his knighthood is awaited today.

YANKEE CHARGE OF DARING MODES AMUSES PARIS

PARIS, June 13.—Paris dressmakers read with more amusement than indignation the indictment of the rue de la Paix by the national convention of women's clubs in Chicago. Inquiries among the leading modistes of this famous street today evoked replies of this general tenor:

"Yes, we make gowns for the demi-monde. We also make other dresses for the most elegant and modest women in Paris. American women who come here have a wide range of models to choose from. If they prefer the most daring examples for display in America we are not to blame."

Paquin said:

"The American women who make these charges do not discriminate between clothes made by responsible firms and those made by small dressmakers who go in for extremes in order to make a name for themselves. American women should be able to tell at a glance these good taste made by well known firms."

Cheruit said:

"The convention's attack is a silly slander on American women in general. It is a fact that some extreme fashions originate in Paris, and are eagerly copied in New York by inferior dressmakers, who degrade the models. The best Paris firms have never countenanced dresses slit to the knee nor corsage open nearly to the waist line."

Jean Worth said:

"Imitation is the spice of trade. Creators of genuine Parisian fashions are not responsible for the travesties complained of. On the other hand, it must be said that American women get from Paris home what they insistently demand. They frequently exact extremes of style. It is true the demi-monde of Paris may enormous sums to noted dressmakers, but that is no reason why society women should imitate them."

Miss Drexel Sued by Chauffeur for $23,000 Damages

NEWPORT, June 13.—The jury which is trying the $23,000 damage suit of George Koschny, a chauffeur, against Alice Drexel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel, today visited the scene of the auto accident which led to the court action.

Koschny alleges that the accident, which occurred in August, 1912, while Miss Drexel was driving the car, was due to the fact that her legs were too short to operate the brakes properly. He claims he was thrown out of the car and severely injured. Miss Drexel escaped unhurt.

INNOCENT MAN IS LIBERATED BY CONFESSION

Freed by a confession of the actual offender, after a month's imprisonment at Deer Island, during which time he lost a pound a day, Herbert T. Andrews, who was convicted for crimes he never committed, is back with his family at Houghs Neck today receiving the congratulations of his friends.

Andrews was sentenced to serve fourteen months, charged with forging checks which had been circulated in several Boston hotels. He protested his innocence but, through a case of mistaken identity, was convicted on circumstantial evidence. His arrest failed to stop the flood of worthless checks, which resulted in the arrest of Earl Barnes, who confessed he had forged the checks for which Andrews had been sentenced.

Barnes' vindication of Andrews was presented to Judge Chase and the latter issued a writ of habeas corpus releasing Andrews from Deer Island. His wife was told over the phone to expect good news and the family was reunited.

Eliot Gives Rules for Happiness to Graduating Class

The chief end of life should not be to gain money, for the chief enjoyments of life cannot be bought, but are the result of personal quality and personal action.

Be accurate; never slouch; cultivate willingness and be persistent; be steady at work and steady at play. All good work is done through zeal and persistency, and these are the qualities which lead to success.

—President Emeritus Eliot to Wentworth Institute graduates.

CHILDREN BALK WEDDING PLANS OF MALDEN PAIR

After spending two weeks making preparations for his wedding to Miss Lena Welsh, a Malden widow, John F. Lawler learned today that the engagement is broken and their marriage will not take place on Sunday as planned. Lawler blames one of Mrs. Welsh's seven children. He is a widower and has five children himself.

Everything went smoothly, Lawler says, until his bride-to-be told him it was "all off." She would not give any reason for her decision, Lawler says.

Lawler had hired a band and engaged an awning company to place coverings about his prospective bride's grounds at No. 143 Commercial street, Malden, so that none of the guests would be bothered by the sun's rays. According to one of Lawler's most intimate friends there was to be an African lodger among the attractions to divert the wedding guests.

Lawler lives at 151A Commercial street. He is forty-five and Mrs. Welsh is forty.

J., that the provision to suspend hostilities in Mexico has been accepted by Carranza, is to in all its essential details by the Huerta delegates at the Niagara Falls mediation conference. The message came from the American representatives. Although President Wilson will not say that he believes the mediation conference will be completely successful he regards the outlook better than it has been at any time the conference opened.

REBELS REPULSED AT MAZATLAN WITH HEAVY CASUALTIES

WASHINGTON, June Admiral Howard reported to the Navy Department today that the Mexican Federal army still holds Mazatlan, although a determined attack by the Constitutionalists began yesterday. The rebels were repulsed with heavy losses, but have not withdrawn. The Federal garrison also suffered heavily.

Admiral Howard also reported that the Federal gunboat Guerrero had attacked the rebel steamer Callao near Guaymas and set her afire.

MEDIATORS DEBATE FORM OF THE NEW MEXICAN GOVERNMENT

By LAURENCE TOD.

Staff Correspondent of the American.

MEDIATORS' HEADQUARTERS, Niagara Falls, June 13.—Having signed an agreement that President Huerta shall retire and be succeeded by a government that will be recognized by the United States, the mediators are debating in formal conferences today how to get around the deadlock point in the negotiations. This involves the form which this new government shall take and whether it shall be inducted into office by appointment at the hands of Huerta or by simultaneous proclamation by the two warring factions of the republic. This is the second half of the first plank in the mediators original plan.

Should an understanding be reached before night and the settlement reduced to writing, there will be taken up tomorrow the third and all-important point—what man shall be provisional President and who shall be the cabinet heads.

The Mexico delegates are attempting to secure an agreement upon the date on which the provisional government is to be created. They want it done as soon as possible—perhaps within a few days. The Americans on the other hand declare can not be held until the latter part of August.

That the Huertiatex delegates are bent upon placing Francisco Lagos Cuzar, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, in the chair to be surrendered by Huerta became evident today. Cuzar is close in the confidence of representatives of Carranza speak enthusiastically of Lagos Cuzar's ability, his honor and his administrative ability.

Facsimile of Governor Walsh's patriotic proclamation calling for observance of Flag Day throughout the Commonwealth tomorrow.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts

By His Excellency DAVID I. WALSH, Governor

A Proclamation

Flag Day

The national flag is the symbol of the sovereignty, power and dignity of the American republic.

To the end that a spirit of reverence and love for the flag might be inculcated, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts ordained, through its Great and General Court, by Chapter 5 of the Resolves of 1911, that the Governor should annually set apart the 14th day of June as Flag Day, that date being the anniversary of the adoption of the national flag by the Continental Congress.

In obedience to the letter and spirit of that Resolve, I hereby issue this proclamation to the people of the Commonwealth, and recommend that the flag be displayed on every public building in the State, and I urge upon the people of the Commonwealth the propriety of supplementing public by private display as widely as possible.

On the school day next preceding, suitable exercises should be held in all our institutions of learning, and inasmuch as the 14th of June falls on Sunday, I recommend that in every house of God the clergy of our Commonwealth make such mention of this symbol of American liberty as may best help to impress upon their congregations what the flag represents, the sacrifices that have been made for it, and the blessings it has secured.

It is most important for the peace and well-being of our Commonwealth that the stranger within our gates be taught by the reverence which we pay to the flag and the honor with which we invest it, to respect it as the symbol of our liberties and institutions and as the pledge of the opportunities and privileges our country offers to those seeking a home under its protection.

Given at the Executive Chamber, in Boston, this second day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fourteen, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty-eighth.

DAVID I. WALSH.

By His Excellency the Governor.

LONDON GIVES BIG GREETING TO ROOSEVELT

The audience will be composed entirely of those fellows of the society who made early application. There is to be no lion hunting, and while it has not been disclosed whether Colonel Roosevelt will make any reply to Henry Savage Landor, the British explorer, and others who have questioned his discovery, it is understood that this is not considered necessary here, where it is has been no tendency to discredit the sincerity in the usefulness of the explorer's work.

It was not anticipated that any suffragettee hostility would be shown the Colonel, for he has already expressed himself in favor of votes for women, but the British officials did not want the ceremonies of the reception interrupted.

Among those invited to meet Colonel Roosevelt during his stay in England were Field Marshal Earl Roberts, Owen Seaman, the editor of Punch; John St. Loe Strachey, publisher of the Spectator; Sir Sidney Colvin, Sir Bertrand Dawson, physician extraordinary to King George, and Sir Horace Plunkett, a famous agricultural expert.

GUEST OF EARL GREY.

On Monday Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister, will give a luncheon to Colonel Roosevelt.

Much curiosity had been expressed before the arrival of the Colonel as to what honors should be paid him by members of the government, in view of the ex-President's expressed opposition to free tolls for the Panama Canal, a probability vigorously championed by the British government.

GUEST AT PAGE LUNCHEON.

Colonel Roosevelt was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by Ambassador Page. Among the other guests were the Spanish Ambassador, Alfredo Alvero del Val; Earl Grey, former governor general of Canada; Earl Curzon of Kedleston, former viceroy of India; John Sargent, the American artist; Henry James, the author; Philip J. Roosevelt, a cousin of the Colonel; Colonel E. M. House of Texas; Henry Chaplin, former Unionist member of Parliament; George Mac A. Trevelyan, the historian, and D. W. Prothero, ex-president of the geographical section of the British Association.

It is expected that the Colonel will meet King George before he sails.

LANDOR'S TRIP RIDICULED BY ROOSEVELT AIDE

PARIS, June 13.—Before leaving Paris for London Colonel Roosevelt gave out a 2,000 word report by Colonel Rondon, the Brazilian government representative who accompanied him on his exploration trip in South America.

The report of Colonel Rondon, who himself is an explorer of note, claims to prove that the London paper referring to Henry Savage Landor, the British explorer) did not cross a palm of land in Brazil or Peru that had not been explored, the greater part of it, many times before.

The report of which is couched in sarcastic vein, gives an alleged detailed history of Mr. Landor's exploration trip from Rio de Janiero to Lima, Peru, in 1913-14. It says Mr. Landor applied to the Brazilian government for an astronomer, a botanist, a zoologist and geologist, and an escort of fifty soldiers with a field piece for protection in case the explorer was attacked by Indians. This latter request was refused.

Colonel Rondon says that although Mr. Landor then requested a subsidy of over $50,000 from the Brazilian government, offering that a number of governments had placed large sums at his disposal for explorations, notably the United States, Germany, and in the Philippines, Colonel Rondon says he finally agreed to accept $10,000.

Colonel Rondon, who was asked by the Brazilian government to accompany Landor in every way, declares that Landor's claim that a number of Indians "worthy the fame of the ex-plorer" were discovered by him, is false for him to have made a path for his party of the ex-President's expressed opposition to free tolls for the Panama Canal, a probability vigorously championed by the British government.

ELKS TO HEAD BOSTON'S FLAG DAY EXERCISES

Flag Day will be celebrated tomorrow in Boston and throughout the Commonwealth generally, in accordance with a patriotic proclamation by Governor Walsh.

The observance in Boston will be under the direction of Boston Lodge of Elks, No. 10, and will be elaborate and impressive. It will take place at the Parkman Memorial bandstand on Boston Common, which is admirably adapted for public exercises.

Elks lodges throughout the State—and all over the country as well—will hold Flag Day exercises tomorrow. There will be municipal and church observances in many communities.

In the public schools yesterday the lessons of patriotism were brought to the children again in exercises glorifying the Stars and Stripes.

Owing to the Mexican situation there is an added significance to the Flag Day exercises this year. New England's share in the American unrest at Vera Cruz has intensified patriotism and love for the country's banner.

Five hundred or more members of Boston Lodge of Elks, wearing black frock coats, silk hats and gray gloves, will escort Mayor Curley from the Elks' clubhouse on Somerset street to the Common tomorrow afternoon. The Mayor is to be the Flag Day orator.

The exercises will begin at 5 o'clock. William F. McNary of the Directors of the Port of Boston will preside. The U. S. A. H. will be represented by Chief Commander-in-Chief John K. Gilbin. The speaker for Boston Lodge will be Past Exalted Ruler Daniel J. Kiley.

Mme. Wilhelmina Wright Calvert will sing. There will be a solo by Edith MacGregor Woodin of Boston Theatre. The Harvard Glee Club and Brooks Milliken Band will contribute to the musical program.

AUTO CHASE FOR BANDITS IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

right into it, hands still up. There the bankers held them. He let them put their hands down. He chatted with them a bit.

A second yegg ran out from the postoffice into the shed, shoved a gun into the bookeeper's left hand and ran back. The second gun was evidently to be used if necessary. Moody and Descateau let it go at that.

There were two or three more explosions from the postoffice. Suddenly the sound of an automobile, purring along on the high speed, was heard. It was a car full of Manchester police. With only four miles to travel and a clear road the distance was travelled in a few minutes. The sound of the engine carried far on the still night, however, and gave warning to the yeggs.

The lookout called. Three men ran out from the postoffice. The lookout whipped up his automobile at Moody and Descateau and barked at them crisply: "Youse beat it down the road. If you yell you'll get shot."

Moody and Descateau "beat it." They didn't yell, either, while they were going.

The four yeggs got away from the postoffice neighborhood before the Manchester police auto slid into the square. How they got away was not figured out until later, but they ran across to the river bank, shoved off in a row boat whose chain they had previously filed, probably rowed to the other side and abandoned the boat.

SAFE WRECKED.

The Manchester police, with citizens who had begun to take notice, found the postoffice wrecked. Six charges of "nitro" had been fired to open the safe.

The heavy outer doors, with their double combination lock, had been blown off. The inner doors had been drilled and blown, giving access to the stamp drawer. But the cash drawer was protected by another door, which the gang had started to drill when the police auto frightened them away.

A few minutes after the Manchester police arrived, Deputy Chief Kimball and his man came up from Nashua. They had seen nothing of fugitives, but had noted the passage of a south-bound freight, wondering if any yeggs might have "jumped" it.

The police started searching the territory alongside the river on either side to the south. Officers and men from Merrimac and Londonderry turned out and, by dawn, a well-organized pursuit was in progress.

After daylight a rowboat was found in mid-stream off Reed's Ferry. This was identified as one used at the ferry, which was chained up at 12 o'clock last night for the night. The filing of the chain was done in advance by the burglars, the police figure, to give them safe retreat.

It is thought that the gang rowed across the river, pushed the boat out again, then struck off southward over the road.

Sheriff Ramsey of Hillsboro County left here in an automobile to join the pursuit.

RITCHIE HOPES TO STOP WELSH IN JULY BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

UNCLE SAMUEL, boasts of many champions in the various lines of sport, but there is not a single mother's son of the lot who is a bit more courageous than Willie Ritchie, the pride of the west's lightweight boasts the supple limbed Yankee has gone on record as high sense, hoped for that here he is scheduled to mix Freddie Welsh, the British title holder, in his own backyard.

There have been few ring champions who have been so willing to clash with all comers as has Willie Ritchie. He has not carefully selected his opponents, like most of our title holders have the ancestors to do. He has given every contender for the lightweight crown who was a drawing card, a chance to battle for the championship.

THE Prince youth now plans to conquer England's greatest lightweight boxer. And in order to make the feat all the more impressive he is going to try and perform it on English soil, and on the anniversary of the day on which Uncle Sam dissolved his partnership with Johnny Bull.

When Ritchie bid these shores adieu, he was as happy as a schoolboy starting on a holiday. He declared that he would give Johnny Bull as bad a jolt as he received back in 1776. Ritchie was also eager to make the trip across the big pond in order that he might give the sights of the Old World the once over.

THE RITCHIE of today is a much improved boxer over the youth who gave Welsh such a hard fight in 1911. He is a finished boxer and can also punch hard with either hand. He says that he will force the fighting in his tussle with Welsh and will try and win by a knockout if possible.

JOHNNY GALLANT will not experience any difficulty in making 123 pounds ringside for his twelve-round bout with Johnny Dundee, which he will meet at the Atlas A. A., next Tuesday night. The little Chelsea lightweight took scales at 126 pounds at Highland Lake today, and will probably be close to this weight on Tuesday.

DUNDEE, like Gallant, is a little fellow, and can make as low as 124 pounds he will probably tip the 131 or 132 pounds Tuesday. Dundee is a fine boxer, as he proved when he fought twenty-rounders with Johnny Kilbane. The New York Italian also delights in exchanging blows in no-decision, ten-round decisions, and if he resorts to this kind of fighting, the fans will witness a great treat, as friend Gallant can punch with the best of them.

JOE FARREN, Lou Kelly's champion, to meet Frankie Chaplen in the semi-final whirl of eight rounds. Kelly says that Farren is in fine condition for the battle and that he will breeze in a winner. Joseph, however, is a boy who is capable of giving a good account of himself against the classiest boxers of his weight in these parts.

LARRY COSTELLO, the Charlestown lightweight, who is managed by Charlie Sampson, states that he would like to get a bout with Jerry Brooks, "Tiger" Young, or any of the other 135-pound performers.

BRAVES AFTER FOUR STRAIGHT OVER PIRATES

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

A year ago the Braves trounced the Pirates in four straight games on the South End Grounds. Will history repeat itself?

The last battle of the series is on for this afternoon and the present score is: Braves won, 2, lost 0; Pirates, won 0, lost 2.

George Tyler is hooked to pitch, unless Stallings changes his mind, while we may see Harmon on the slab for the Pirates.

The recent fine showing of the men under Stallings ought to bring the fans out in droves if the weather remains pleasant. Maybe President Dallinger will take a hint and come over from New York. The poor start made by the Braves early in the season was a severe disappointment to the owner of the club.

The National League race is tightening all the time, and it is not putting it strong to say that every club in the organization has a chance to win the pennant. For example, the Braves are 10½ games behind the Giants, who are leading the race. What are 10½ games when the Boston team has 110 games to play? Not that we expect the Braves to win the pennant, but the feat is by no means impossible.

The Giants, on earth again, it may be remarked that the game today will begin at 3 p. m. We will see the last of the Pirates for some time. On Monday the remnants of the once formidable Chicago Cubs will be with us.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

ONE OF THE PITTSBURGH SCRIBES REfers to Marquette as a "Little Giant." Probably the Bishop named up with Gans de Montreville, who was an amateur in several of the big fights while Gans was back, and whose play was in many ways similar to that of Marquette.

BARNEY DREYFUSS, owner of the Pirates, made an offer of $5,000 for Pitcher Edward Hughes of the Angels, the property of the Pacific Coast League. Although over 19 years old, Hughes has won eight games in eight starts. The offer was refused.

THE TIP ROUND THE WORLD HURT Joe Bush so much that he has pitched only a no hit and a one hit game lately.

THE CHIEFS have played no extra inning game, and in that regard are anything but shy Feds.

BILL CARRIGAN SAYS SCOTT IS THE best first sack man he ever saw and covers as much ground as Barry or Hoblitzel.

JIM KELLEY OF "THE PIRATES SAYS the right name is not Tagart, as reported, but as Beiler.

MANAGER BIRMINGHAM "STAGED" A takeon of the Nats, but the prediction has yet to get across the plate.

CONNIE MACK'S PITCHING SWAYNE is doing so poorly that real pennant prospects are taking a close third for worry money.

GRIFFITH HAS ASKED FOR WAIVERS on Carl Cashion, the pitcher, who has been idled by the Washington for two years.

IT REMAINED FOR THE PITTSBURGH Feds to score the first run of the two contests of the Joe Tuesday being his first game at Pittsburgh.

THE EAST IS RUNNING SIXTH, SEVenth and eighth in the National League race, and the West will have to fill in the gap between first and fifth place.

TAKE HIM FOR HIS HITTING, BASE running, throwing and ground covering and George Sisler is easily one of the best outfielder in the National League.

WHILE THE BALTIMORE TERRAPINS are showing the Baltimore fans some exciting ball the signs is true of the two Pittsburgh clubs.

THE CUBS, THE NEXT TEAM TO VISIT Wrigley Field, have adopted their dark blue traveling suits, being much more dressy, so to speak, in suits of color, than the white blue ironbangs.

By FRED HOEY.

AN EVENT WHICH JACKIE MAGEE IS hoping for the Irish-American games is the 600-yard race for novices. Jackie has also arranged for a 56-pound weight event which should attract the boxers.

TOM FLANAGAN, BROTHER OF THE FAmous John, former handler of Tom Longboat, has left for Paris, where he will manage the management of Jack Johnson for his bout with Frank Moran late the month.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO INTERscholastic track and field games will be held today. Entries from 119 institutions number 1,031. On the same day 1,000 others will report to the clerk of course at Buffalo, when the Public School Athletic League will hold its annual meet.

ARTHUR DUFFY, DESERVED THE CAPtaincy of the High School of Commerce track team, this year, but he lost a consistent performer in the quarter and 600.

GUERDON MESSER, athletic instructor at Worcester Academy, says the class of 1915 has turned in a stretch run of 32 wins, will superthe Class of 1913, 31 to 1917. Mr. Tilt Washburn, Messer still retains how to handle young fellows and is doing a good deal to look after the camp.

WILLIAM E. STARGES, LATE OF THE Springfield Y. M. C. A., boss been appointed athletic instructor at the Connecticut Literary Institute at Suffield.

AN OLD ATHLETE NAMED HASKINS has been elected coach of Williamson Academy, to succeed Chas. Penfield, who has resigned.

GASTON STROBINO, THE PATERSON, N. J., runner who showed so well in the last Olympic Marathon, is training for a 15-mile race to be held in Cleveland June 27. The latter will try to beat the amateur record. He has passed up the Junior three-mile championship at the A. A. U. meet June 20, because the distance is so short.

HANNES KOLEHMAINEN RECEIVED A great ovation when he arrived home in Helsingfors, Finland. Honors was suspended for the date and 15,000 turned out to welcome the great runner. He has been away from his native country for two years, following the close of the Olympiad while in this country.

HANNES KOLEHMAINEN IS NEW YORK bound to the consternation that the Olympic champion is entered as a runner. Van Winkle, Meyers and Shrubb are also entered. There is less time than a record half-mile which Meredith made and Shepard will attempt to clip. Meredith and Shrubb predict that the mark is nothing of the kind. Shepard is the holder of the American record in the half-mile run years old.

JOE SWEENEY, THE FORMER B. A. A. Marathon runner, is now located in the Canadian Northwest, where he is employed with the Canadian Pacific Railroad. Joe was first Marathon and finished in four of them. He has taken up considerable weight since he quit the game.

Joe has always been eager to compete around Boston and it is expected that his invitation to local stars to compete in his meet will attract all the best bands.

SOX ANXIOUS TO BREAK EVEN WITH DETROIT

DETROIT, June 12.—With the series standing 2 to 1 against them, the Red Sox are out to make it an even break in the final game of the series today.

The third contest yesterday was a thriller, with the Tigers nosing out by a score of 1 to 0.

A. Rankin Johnson did the hurling for the visitors against Coveleskie, the former Giant tamer.

Johnson was good enough to have won nine out of ten games played. He allowed five hits and only, two of them came in one inning. Bush tripled the first time up and scored when Moriarty hit a difficult foul to Gardner. From that time on neither club counted.

The Stockings were made to look foolish by the great twirling of the Tigers' star southpaw. Covie had everything. He had a sharp break to his curve and a quick hop on his fast ball. Time after time the Sox let fast ones and curves glide over for called strikes. Seldom this year have they seemed so helpless.

Except for some wildness in the first and third innings and Cady's single in the fifth, Covie was perfect up to the ninth. He passed both Hooper and Speaker in the first inning, but after a double play kept the Sox scoreless.

The Sox made only one serious threat. That was in the ninth inning. Rehg was sent to pinch hit for Hooper. Hooper had fanned twice and walked once. The last time he was in such distress that he tried to reach first by swinging for his third strike at a ball that hit the ground before it got to Stanage, but Spin threw him out.

Speaker lifted one to right field, but Crawford got it after a hard chase, and the Sox were shut out, for Lewis was an easy infield out.

Nelson-McFarland Cambridge Winners

Frankie Nelson of New York was the winner over Joe Phillips of Providence in their twelve-round bout at the University A. C., Cambridge.

George Alger of Cambridge was to have been Phillips' opponent, but Nelson was substituted.

Tom McFarland, who substituted for Tiger Young in a ten-round bout with Gus Murphy, won the decision by a big margin.

Tom Doris and Johnny Murphy boxed a six-round draw, and Ray Duretto, the Lynn boxer, won the decision over Bob Link in another six-round affair.

Deadlock in Naming Captain at Bowdoin

BRUNSWICK, Me., June 13.—Although the Bowdoin College baseball team tried several times, it was unable to elect a captain for the season of 1915. A. Keith Eaton, '15, of Calais; Leslie N. Stetson, '15, of Brunswick, and Leland S. McGlavee, '16, of Houlton, are all candidates for the position, but none of them received a majority of the votes cast.

Lynn Doctors Beaten.

In a six-inning game at Ocean Park, the Lynn police baseball team defeated a team composed of doctors, 18 to 12.

Semi-Finals Today at Belmont Springs

Play has reached the semi-final in the annual Spring three-day golf tourney at the Belmont Springs Country Club.

V. S. Lawrence, Woodland, and H. H. Cook, Albemarle, the two players that tied in the qualification round for the low gross honors, appear to be in a fair way to reach the final bracket today. Their golf has been the most consistent of any of the contestants, as their scores and wins yesterday proved.

Lawrence will oppose P. W. Dunbar and Cook meets Parker Schofield, his clubmate.

Shooting Title Won by Single Target

Jay Clark Jr. of the Worcester Gun Club broke 167 out of 175 targets, and was high gun at the Massachusetts Trapshooting Association State tournament over the Paleface traps, while George A. Blanchard and Walter B. Hoxie of Portland, Me., captured the two-man amateur New England team championship by a margin of a single target over the veteran Frank Hilliard of Lynn and Charles F. Marden of Salem.

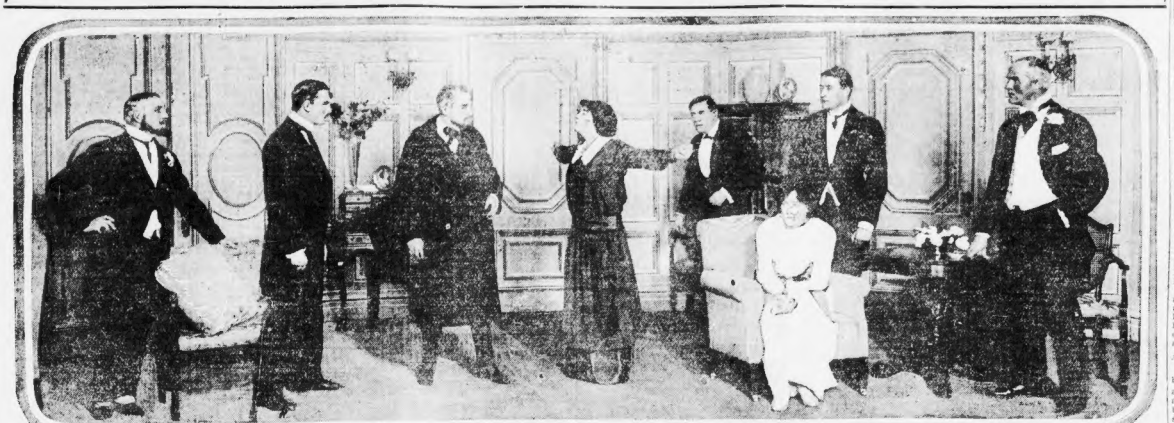
THE YELLOW TICKET

One of the Most Sensational Stories Ever Written
Russian Persecution of the Jews Fully Exposed



Marya tells her pathetic story

Adapted from the play presented by A. H. Woods at the Eltinge Theatre, New York City, and also written by Michael Morton.

(Novelized)

By A. A. WATERBURY.

Copyright, 1914, International News Service.

"I'm grateful to you for your kindness in the past—but it hurts bitterly that you should think I had contaminated your house. I have been brought up an honest, God-fearing girl—and God is my witness that is how I have lived. Mr. Seaton, with this Yellow Ticket—hidden away—like something precious—close to my heart."

Anna Mirrel sank to the settee as if exhausted. She gazed with the dull apathy of one who has made her right and lost, into the drab future.

Michael Seaton spoke with cold precision. "The Yellow Ticket is the most powerful passport in Russia. It gives the holder the most privileged of moves, freely to his part of the Czar's dominions—no Russian subject, rich or poor, Christian or Jew, has such freedom. Honest, God-fearing girls are not ask for this ticket."

"Jewish girls are forced to," said the Jewess bitterly.

"Oh, what a country," cried Margery Seaton.

BLIND FAITH.

Rolfe's face suddenly cleared and a look of blind faith in the woman he loved came to blot out the black cloud of horror that had settled in it.

"You're jumping at conclusions—I'll stake my life"—he cried warmly.

With counterbalancing coldness the Count replied: "Come, that is a matter for Mr. Seaton to decide."

"Then Anna Mirel-begin will please leave here at once," said the outraged father.

"Look here, you're not going to drive that girl out without giving her a chance to say a word in her defence?" said Julian Rolfe in impotent rage.

"You've heard what the Count said?" asked Seaton.

"And I'd like to hear what she has to say."

"There is no defence for such a thing."

"What thing?" cried Rolfe, wrathfully. "Mr. Seaton, do you mean that dirty little—eavesdropper—for that's all it is in clean hands."

"My dear Rolfe, control yourself."

"No! I know it's hard to form in England to show your feelings. Well, I've been badly brought up and can't stand by and see a girl who has lived here like one of the family pushed out like a servant without a character. Mr Seaton, that's not fair play; give her a chance to make herself right. You want to—don't you, Miss Var—Mirrel?"

"What's the use?" said the girl with sad acceptance of her fate.

"What is there to be said—no decent woman would place herself in such a position—no, not for anything in the world," and John Seaton.

A SAD SMILE.

"Oh, yes, a decent woman would do anything in the world for one she loved—and the one I dearly loved—the one I did it for—was—my father"

He went to America!"

"Why didn't you go with your father?" asked John Seaton, with cold disbelief.

"Because my mother was too delicate to travel. I had to stay with her," said the Jewess quietly, as if filial devotion were not an almost forgotten thing in this modern age of selfish self-expression on the part of the young. "Honor thy father and thy mother" was part of Anna Mirrel's heritage from a race that has outlasted persecution and hatred because it is based on family love, family honor and family respect. Some strain of good blood and good breeding kept the girl from making a scene even now in her desperate straits. The Russian has a dull apathy and indifference from suffering persecution and tyranny for a thousand years. The Jew has suffered so for more than five thousand years, but he remains hopeful. Now with hope dead in her heart, Anna Mirrel's voice took on the dull listlessness of the hopeless fatalist.

"I was brought up just as carefully as your daughter, Mr. Seaton. I was guarded and shielded. I wasn't even allowed to leave the house alone for fear some harm might come to me. . . . I was very precious to my family."

The girl's voice broke for a moment as she sensed how alone she was now—she who had once been precious as was John Seaton's daughter to him now. Then she went on in a controlled voice that seemed very pathetic to one listener.

"My father was coming home from America. We were expecting to hear from him—from Petersburg. A telegram did come. . . . It was from a hospital. It said my father had met with a serious accident and could only live a few hours. That was his homecoming after two long years of absence. . . . I had to pack up to go to the living."

FINGERS CLENCHED.

The girl struggled with the memory for a moment. The little muscles at her side of her jaw were forced convulsively and her fingers fluttered open and then clenched again. But she went on in a voice drained of emotion.

"My relatives told me that the police would not allow me to leave the village—as a Jewess I must remain within the Pale of Settlement. I was young. I was inexperienced. I felt sure that when I explained to the officials they would understand and make an exception—they would surely let me go to my—dying father.

"Why, he was all I had left—I thought the police might some of them have daughters. So I wouldn't listen. I went to the Police Bureau—there I was told that I could have a passport that would take me anywhere. They laughed when they said that. I was glad—and I thought what foolish people we Russians were to have told me that I could not go.

"I laughed, too—I was glad—I was so glad. . . . but I have never been very happy since.

"I asked for the passport at once, as I was anxious not to miss the train. . . . The police inspector went out the Yellow Ticket and asked me to sign it. I was about to do so when he said I'd better read it first. I did——"

As Anna Mirrel said that there was a little stir in the room—the sympathy which had been mounting to meet her love for her own people died before this revelation of the cruelty of the case of outraged decency against Anna Mirrel.

"I don't understand it. My mother was a pious woman and had showed me only the good in the world."

There was no thought of a breath of reproach in her voice for the mother who had sought for so long to fight the battle of life. Anna Mirrel had found ignorance no shield and mother—only a staff. But that did not make her waver in her loyal respect to her mother's memory.

HER TORTURE.

"I told the police inspector that I didn't understand it—and he swore at me. I told him that I was not refusing to sign it—for, oh! I did not want to make him angry at me, or think I was trying to evade the law—instead I explained that I wanted to know the law—so I would obey it. He laughed again, and the other officers laughed—it was a great joke to them. Then he explained to me—in coarse, brutal words that tore the veil from everything sacred in life. And I knew my life has never been the same to me since."

There was a pause. The girl stood alone with her memories. The Russian nobles looked at her with the same expression of passive indifference they would have felt for any caged animal beating hopelessly against the bars.

"But I had to go. I could not let my father die among strangers—and so I signed the Yellow Ticket."

There was a little gasp from Margery Seaton. It seemed most unbelievable that a girl would put her whole future life under the shadow of suspicion and fear in order to give a dying father a few moments of peace. Rolfe stared at the girl with a strange veneration dawning in his eyes. But the other men were perilously near to sneering. But no one spoke a word—they waited for Anna Mirrel to go on.

"In my village they lit candles and said the prayers for the dead—for I was dead to them after that. I am dead to them now—I could never go back—there is no place for me. They call it sitting 'shiva' when they do mourning and say those prayers for the dead—for one who is living. It is the most terrible disgrace that can befall a girl. It has happened to me——

"I reached my father in time. Fortunately he could not speak—he couldn't ask about my dear mother nor about me—so he never knew how I passed the pale. And so I received his blessing and closed his eyes in peace.

"God rest his soul."

CHAPTER ONE

THE Dennison girls had always been peculiar, and because their father had the means to give them what they asked, they were regarded as eccentric by a kind-hearted society who benefited greatly by the brilliant functions contemplated arranged at the Dennison home.

It happened that Helen and Mildred Dennison had a box at the opera one evening when Emmy Destinn, the celebrated singer, was appearing. Both girls immediately conceived a violent liking for the charming singer and demanded to be taken back of the scenes, where a little later they were presented to Miss Destinn, who promised to sing at the Dennison reception, a very brilliant affair which the two girls had been planning.

Helen Dennison was much older than her sister, and, strange to say, had an uncanny fancy for wild animals. She owned what one might almost call an entire menagerie of her own, a magnificent family of lions who performed at her bidding with unerring dangerously every moment that she spent in the cage. Her father had often expostulated with her on the advisability of tempting fate too far, but she had laughed his fears to scorn and had promised all her friends to give an exhibition of her skill in taming at the coming reception, which was really a birthday party given for Mildred.

IN LOVE!

Mildred was a slim little thing of a highly temperamental order. She played the violin and piano with all her soul in every note, and danced like a veritable houri, and for all her wealth and social position she was a little fool in love with her young instructor, a man with nothing but his good looks to his credit.

But all was not going as well as might have been expected in the Dennison family. The day before the reception a heavy slump in the market had almost driven Dennison to the wall. His one hope lay in his wicked creditor, Atwood, who had promised to see him safely through on one condition—that Mildred Dennison should promise him the hand in marriage. Mr. Dennison said that nothing would please him more, for he feared he had no idea of her feelings on the subject. To tell him that he had his doubts of Atwood's success there, for but yesterday he had surprised Mildred and Elliott Gerry, the young violinist, together in the music room, and although he had forbidden Gerry any further part of the Dennison home, temperamental Mildred had flown into a passion, saying that she would never marry any one else in the world.

How wonderful to have secured Emmy Destinn for this evening," said Mildred to Helen on the evening of the affair. "What with your lecture and my dance, and so wonderful a drawing card as the most wonderful soloist in the world we surely ought to make a success of it."

Helen agreed, and a moment later the two sisters went down stairs to meet their guests.

The famous singer was surrounded from the minute she entered the reception room, and when it was whispered that she was to sing for Princess Atta from Mogson," even Helen's self-control failed into indistinguishable. Mr. Dennison led Miss Destinn to the tiny stage which had been erected, and just as a silence fell upon the room Mr. Atwood stepped forward.

THE SINGER AGREES.

"A thousand pardons," he said, bowing to Miss Destinn and turning to the audience, who wondered at the interruption, "But just to make it more exciting, inasmuch as we have already had so much excitement this evening, I shall give you a choice. Miss Destinn, if you will step into the lion's cage to sing your solo."

"And I will play your accompaniment," added Helen excitedly.

There was a moment's throbbing silence, as the great singer looked with surprise at the request. But with every eye in the room fastened on her, she hesitated for barely a second. Then she raised her chin determinedly and smiled like a queen upon her audience.

"I thank you, Mr. Atwood, in the name of the poor of this great city," she said amid a storm of applause. "I shall be delighted to comply with your request."

The Hour of Satiety

By DOROTHY DIX

NOT long ago a man who did the housework for his family killed himself because the monotony of the labor was more than he could bear.

Women have a greater endurance than men, and they seldom take the suicide route out of the kitchen, but there comes a time in every woman's life when, after having swept the same floor a million times, and brushed a billion steaks and onions, and darned a trillion pairs of socks, she goes crazy with the sameness of the treadmill in which she goes round and round, day after day, week after week, year after year.

The monotony of domesticity gets on her nerves, and she begins to hate her children, hate her husband, hate her children, hate all the principles that she has held fast to all of her irreproachable life. For the moment she has lost her poise and her perspective. For the time being she is insane, and liable to commit any folly.

I have before me a letter from such a woman. She says that she has a good, kind, well-to-do husband, who loves her and is generous to her. She has a home and four grown-up children, but she wants to leave it all, and she writes:

A PATHETIC LETTER.

"I am tired of it all. I am tired of housework. I am tired of sweeping and dusting, and washing dishes. I am tired of being a wife. Tired of being a mother. I have given twenty-six years of unremitting service to my family. Now I want to give something to myself, and I am going to study bookkeeping and go into an office to work. My husband and children think it outrageous and disgraceful for me to go out into the world to earn money when my husband is willing and able to support me, but haven't I some rights in the matter? Haven't I a right to do as I like?"

This is simply a typical case of the woman driven temporarily insane by the dull monotony of her life and ready to run amuck among all of her cherished household gods and smash them into smithereens. And there are many others suffering from the same form of hysteria. When a middle-aged married woman suddenly declares that her mission is elevating the stage instead of raising babies, or she takes to writing mash notes to a matinee hero, or she elopes with the iceman, it is because she has gone stark, staring mad from dullness.

And the remedy is change. What these women need is not to break up their homes, but to get away from them for a little while. They need to go away among strangers, where they will not see a single face they know for six months, and where they will not even have a letter from home. By the end of that time they would be pining for their own cook stoves and dusting caps, and they would be holding up every other woman they met and telling her that there was nothing like the home circle after all.

Sentence of thirty years' imprisonment for stealing kisses has been passed on Charles Guyton at Los Angeles. He held up the girl at the point of a revolver, and took the money from her purse. Learning that this was all the money she had to set home with, Guyton kissed the girl and returned the money, with the remark, "It was worth it."

Do You Know That

There are forty daily publications in London, 183 dailies in the rest of the kingdom, while British weekly and monthly publications total 2,643 and 1,893 respectively. England excluding London, has 138 daily papers and 1,595 weeklies; Wales has eight dailies and 131 weeklies; Scotland eighteen dailies and 263 weeklies, while Ireland stands well in the journalistic world with nineteen dailies and 200 weeklies. In London there are 694 weekly publications.

The force of twenty women police established at Chicago is to be disbanded. The complaints are that the respectable women whom the police-women were employed to protect have been subjected to too close supervision, that malefactors have been too roughly handled, and that large crowds gathered wherever the policewomen made an arrest.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THIS GOOD BEHAVIOR

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a young girl who lives across the street from me and I know she likes me, but her mother does not want her to see boys.

So will you please tell me the best way to get her mother to let her see me? L.

CONDUCT yourself well; show a deference to her wishes and prove yourself to be a manly man in that way you will win her heart, and the self-improvement you have made will repay you if you don't.

BETTER NOT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am keeping company with a gentleman seven years my senior, very nice and I like him. Nobody would think by his looks that he is much older than myself. As long as my mother approves of his attentions, is it proper for me to accept them?

A GIRL of fifteen is too young to keep steady company with any man, no matter how desirable he may be. If he is of the right sort, he will prefer, for your sake, waiting until you are at least three years older.

HE IS A TIME WASTER

DEAR Miss FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a gentleman for the last ten years and no wedding bells for me.

TROUBLED.

You have wasted ten years of your life, but better late than never. Engage to a man, so selfish. Cut him from your list of friends.

Just try this coffee

In 1, 2 and 3 pound cans. Never in bulk. Ground, Unground or Pulverized.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks averagen a shade stronger at the close than at the opening, but llats were irregular at the end. The covering movement of Saturday last was not repeated. Business was dull throughout the morning, transactions in New York totalling scarcely 50,000 shares. Sentiment appeared to be more bearish. The Washington report that the Interstate Commerce Commission would not decide the Eastern rate case today was verified. There was a little selling pressure during the first hour, but it was of short duration. There was enough wanted to take care of the supply, which was limited. Traders appeared to be quite unconcerned as the market would stagnate until the rate case was decided. Many of them are away over the Decoration Day close of business on Monday.

Americans ruled below New York parity at the close in London. There was a slightly better feeling in Paris, according to cables. More gold will be shipped to Paris next week. It was announced that one New York house would secure $1,000,000 or $1,500,000 on Tuesday's steamship.

At the close in New York Atchison, United Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Reading, Baltimore & Ohio and Among losses were Reading, American Can, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting and Union Pacific.

Most active issues were lower at the finish. Bostons, losses here included New Haven, Elevated preferred, Boston & Maine preferred, Butte & Superior and North Butte, Boston & Maine was up a point, Calumet & Arizona.

Disturbing market influences were Chicago bank failures and the uncertainty in Europe caused by the assassination of the political situation in France and rumors that Germany was likely to engage in another war.

The New York bank statement in brief for the week's average statement: Excess cash reserve, $47,187,550, decrease, $2,092,350; loans, decrease, $7,271,000; specie, decrease, $5,742,000; legal tenders, increase, $2,650,000; net deposits, decrease, $12,-613,000; circulation, decrease, $174,-000. Actual statement: Loans, increase, $23,616,000; specie, increase, $3,091,000; legal tenders, increase, $300,000; net deposits, increase, $19,-546,000; reserve, decrease, $19,715,200.

GOVERNMENT FACES DEFICIT.

The United States government faces a deficit of several million dollars this year and in order to make up the difference needed to meet expenses $50,000,000 must be sold. This is what the government had to do also in the second Cleveland administration, when the Democrats had passed a tariff bill which did not provide enough revenue. The deficit for 1914 will be about $7,000,000. It will be met by selling Panama Canal bonds. The administration believed when it passed the present tariff measure that customs receipts would be greatly augmented, but expected to make up the difference through the income tax. But income tax assessments to date total around $50,750,000 only, or $23,250,000 less than had been estimated.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo has stated that in the current fiscal year to July 1, 1914, will be $291,000,000 or $23,000,000 above the estimates.

That the combined internal revenue receipts will be $311,000,000 or $1,000,000 under the estimates.

That the combined income and corporation tax receipts will be $75,000,000 divided as follows: Corporations, $44,000,000, or $2,400,000 above the estimate; personal income, $31,000,000, or $32,250,000 less than the estimate.

That the miscellaneous receipts will be about $56,000,000, or $5,000,000 less than the estimate.

That the ordinary disbursements of the government are now estimated at $702,000,000 or $5,000,000 more than the original estimate.

That the ordinary receipts are estimated at about $732,000,000, leaving a surplus of $30,000,000. This surplus will be absorbed by the Panama Canal payments, estimated at $37,-000,000 for this year.

INCOME TAX DODGERS.

Secretary McAdoo is of the opinion that there has been widespread tax dodging, something which has been common enough in communities where the first assessment upon personal property was made. He intimates that it is not going to be so easy for the Uncle Sam as a collector, remarking:

"The department is convinced that many persons liable to income tax have failed to make returns and that many have made incomplete returns. Active steps will be taken to discover all evasions of the law and a large additional amount of income tax will undoubtedly be collected from these delinquents."

STILL AFTER ROCKEFELLER.

It is stated at Washington that former Senator Folk of Missouri, now chief counsel for the Interstate Commerce Commission, has not abandoned his intention to summon Colonel William Rockefeller to testify as "an insider" as to New Haven road affairs, if the Standard Oil magnate is able to answer questions. The latter's health has been his sanctuary so far, but Mr. Folk is expected when he reaches New York on Monday, to learn just what is the real state of the Rockefeller health. When Mr. Folk reaches New York Frank Fowler, of counsel for the Federal tribunal, with a lot of data from the records of the house of Morgan.

RESERVE BOARD MEMBERSHIP.

On Monday President Wilson will announce who will constitute the membership of the Federal Reserve Board. The list is understood to be Thomas D. Jones of Chicago, treasurer, and Paul M. Warburg of New York, A. C. Miller of San Francisco, F. C. Simmons of St. Louis, W. G. P. Harding of Birmingham, Ala., and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Comptroller of the Currency Williams, ex-officio.

It was stated at the Treasury Department that the twelve federal reserve banks will be in operation by August 1. Mr. Jones will be chairman of the Reserve Board. He is a retired lawyer, and is described as an "expert and student in finance."

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Gold exports for the week total $19,700,000, and for the current movement $58,200,000. For the year to date the total is $140,000,000.

The management of the Southern Pacific road does not intend to buy any new equipment for moving this year's crops.

A syndicate of Eastern bankers has offered $1,800,000 for all the properties of the Pope Manufacturing Company in Connecticut and Massachusetts. The company is in the hands of a receiver.

It is believed that not more than two steel companies in this country are now doing better than earning preferred dividends.

Earnings of the United States Steel Corporation for the second quarter of this year are not likely to exceed those for the first quarter, when they approximated about $18,000,000.

Spencer Miliken & Company have issued a leaflet giving high and low prices for May and dividends for June.

The Canal for Great Britain and Exile for the Democracy

It was an historic moment in the Senate when the well-disciplined forces of the railroad Senators, aided by the old-line Republicans, passed the bill surrendering the Panama Canal to the combination of Great Britain and the transcontinental railroads.

Its effect upon the future of the Democratic party was faintly indicated by the effort of two Democratic Senators to come to blows in the Senate chamber, and by the silence with which the whole Democratic side listened to a biting denunciation of the President by a Republican Senator from Minnesota.

Picture the scene in the closing hours of the debate. Clapp, a progressive Republican from Minnesota, flung down the gauntlet to the President declaring that he was leading the Democratic party to the point of disintegration, for lack of a proper conception of the will of the people, and for lack of sympathy with true Democratic principles. The Minnesota Senator declared, what every dispassionate student of American history knows to be true, that > "No one can read the earlier writings of Woodrow Wilson and fail to reach the conclusion that he is no more of a Democrat than William H. Taft, Senator Elihu Root or Alexander Hamilton."

No Democrat responded to the Clapp arraignment. How could they controvert the truth?

But it was a field day for the old-line Republican Senators—the men whose arbitrary control of the party in the interest of predatory wealth and organized monopoly forced the Republican split and installed a supposed Democracy in power.

Root, Carnegie's Senator, the chosen legal adviser to corporate monopoly and organized greed, who had ostentatiously absented himself during the vote on the Norris-Simmons amendment, came in to grace with his presence the destruction of the canal as a competitor to his clients, the railroads.

Lodge, one of the New Haven crowd, who in an able speech demolished the claim that repeal was demanded either by "national honor" or the strict letter of the treaty, was there to give his vote to a measure which his voice had condemned—merely in order to support a President so satisfactory to his friends in the railroad business.

Every corporation Republican and railroad Democrat, every office seeking Democrat, every lame duck apprehensive of defeat and anxious for a soft place in which to land, every sycophant dazzled by the glare of the White House, every Bourbon Democrat holding that Senators should herd like cattle dominated by the party lash, voted to make up that majority for national surrender and national humiliation.

Truth loses battles, but it wins wars. The war against British usurpation of control of the Panama Canal has but begun. This first battle was lost not for lack of popular devotion to the American cause but because the national army was betrayed by its leaders, by those whom it had elevated to the highest station. But the cause is not lost. With traitors and skulkers driven from command the war can be pressed to victory.

The nation is not bound forever by the acts of the pitiful weaklings that today by an accident of politics control its government. The Panama Canal will endure long after those who would now barter it to Great Britain for a fickle friendship have passed from political oblivion into forgotten graves. Laws enacted in violation of party pledges and in defiance of popular will can be repealed. Politicians who have voted to flatter Great Britain, or to fatten the coffers of the railroads, will have an opportunity in November to judge of the worth of these new friendships in an American Senatorial election.

The President will do well to hoard carefully such patronage as he has left. There will be many "lame ducks" after next November clamoring for the fulfilment of the promises which won this disastrous "victory."

The Hedge of Hate

By LILIAN LAUFERTY

I WENT to my garden one sun-kissed day
To clip the paths and smooth the beds;
The leaflets of Springtime were all astray,
And tulips lifted their radiant heads.
To keep the grace of my garden plot
I set about it a high, green hedge—
For my neighbor's land was a dreary spot,
And it stretched in waste to my garden edge.

Rich fragrance scented the warm June air,
Where blossoms fell and my garden grew,
And the hedges held the border there,
And hid the ruin I would not view.
But I knew beyond the boxwood gate
There lay a tangle with weeds o'ergrown,
And I rooted up all my hedge of hate,
So my garden might be my neighbor's own!

LO! IN THE MORNING AT RISE OF SUN
I FOUND MY NEIGHBOR TOILING THERE:
"IF OUR TWO GARDENS BE AS ONE—FRIEND, IT MUST ALL BE GREEN AND FAIR!"

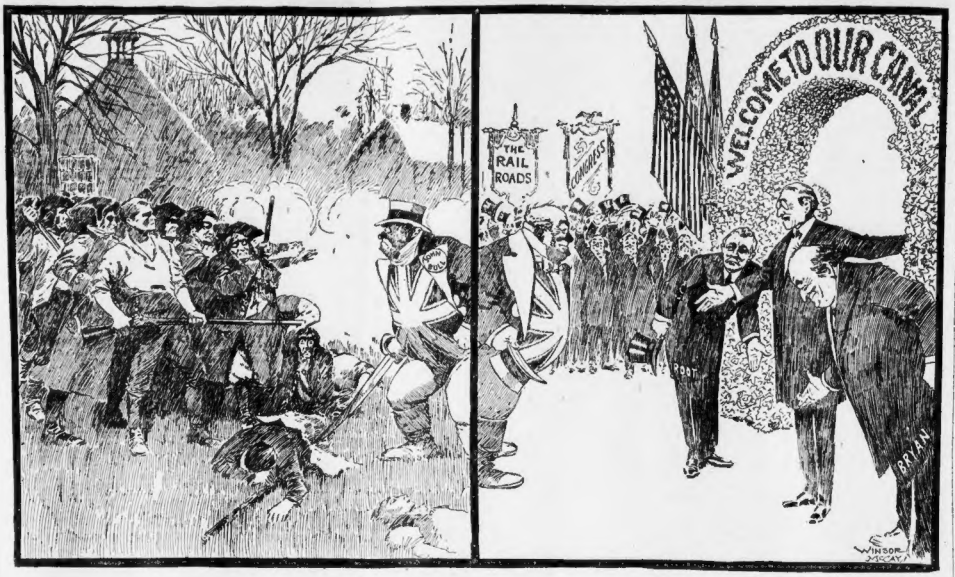
American History Reversed---The Battle of Lexington

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company



On April 19, 1775, a small force of American patriots at Lexington valiantly opposed the British forces sent by Gage to disperse them as rebels. The same day, at Concord, the British were utterly routed. As we see in the cartoon, John Bull did not at all approve of the American course in 1775. In the Summer of 1914 he finds a very different reception awaiting him by the authorities on this side of the water, and plainly shows his pleasure at the change the years have wrought.

Langley's Airship

By EDGAR LUCIENLARKIN

SAMUEL PIERREPONT LANGLEY, of Pittsburgh, Pa., invented and made the first heavier-than-air flying machine. He worked out the scientific laws of aeroplanes. The machine was not successful in flight; the aged inventor could not handle it, and he became depressed during the remaining years of his life.

I was present and heard Langley deliver his address as president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. John A. Brashear was present also, and he visited Los Angeles in February, 1914. He told me of his being with Langley in his last illness.

He scarcely left the room, wanting to be with his friend from their boyhood days. Brashear, on this visit, told me that he held the hand of Langley at the time of death, and that the great scientific genius really died of a broken heart.

Brashear is the most accurate scientific instrument maker in the world—the "millionth of an inch man."

Langley toiled during twenty years and so well discovered the laws of nature ruling heavier-than-air machines that no new law has been discovered since. Now, Glen Curtiss has made a successful flight in this very machine of Langley.

This is a historic event. The first machine is successful. Usually man fails at first and makes a new machine; but here the first has proven itself! Would that Langley could have lived to see this machine soaring!

It is said that Congress would not appropriate sufficiently for Langley. Money was always forthcoming for instruments of death, but not for airships in their beginning. Had Congress helped Langley and his workers, beyond doubt the Atlantic Ocean would have been crossed by aeroplanes before this.

Hat Langley, by this flight of Curtiss in the original machine, is at once included in the roll of fifty able to add to the sum of human knowledge.

Discipline and Work

By MRS. FRANK LEARNED

Author of "The Etiquette of New York Today."

"IF there is one rule above another which I wish to impress on those who are starting out in life," writes Charles Kingsley, "it is this—take pains. Take trouble. Whatever you do, do thoroughly. Whatever you begin, finish. It may not seem worth your while at the moment to be so very painstaking and exact. In after years you will find that it was worth your while, that it has paid you by training your character, paid you by giving you success in life, paid you by giving you the trust and respect of others."

At school, for example, an intelligent boy or girl knows that in mathematics, history, geography or any other study the mind is being trained in concentration, accuracy, powers of observation. Or, it may be that there is a task to be done in music, an exercise on the piano. It takes all one's attention at first. After a while it seems very easy. Fingers and brain work together. Facility and rapidity have been acquired and work has become a delight.

* * *

The boy or girl who is given some useful work to do at home is helped to realize and to enjoy the responsibility of doing the task and doing it well and is thus gaining in character-building. It may be that a boy is expected to keep a yard in order, go on errands, or relieve some one of care; or that a girl is required to attend to some household task, to dust a room, or keep a desk in neat condition, arrange flowers for the table, or make a dainty dessert. Little things, faithfully done, help to form habits of neatness, orderliness, thoroughness. These duties may seem small, but they are important beginnings.

* * *

Work of any sort is a training. The habit of concentration helps to give power and decision.

Success is never won by a careless, slipshod, slovenly way of working, but by a patient, persistent, faithful habit of attention to detail, and in the conscientious fulfillment of a task, large or small, and whether it is liked or not.

The honest purpose should be to do it well, although it may neither be observed nor praised.

Whatever our daily work the discipline of it teaches us self-restraint, obedience to law and guides us to a well-ordered life. A secret of success is to try to like what we have to do and to do our best and not waste time in dreaming of what we would do if we had other opportunities.

Huxley and His Strange Dream

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

THE great English scientist saw more things and greater things with his mind's eye than he did with the eye of flesh. Looking into the quivering structure of the jellyfish he saw therein the foundations of modern biology. He gazed on the horse upon which he took his daily exercise and in the distant background of the early Eocene he saw its strange ancestor with its five hoofs on each leg.

He bent over the tiny bit of protoplasm and in it there was revealed to him the grand procession of Life, from Ameba of the primeval sea to Plato, Shakespeare and Washington.

But all this is as nothing in comparison with another vision that came to Huxley—the influence of which abided with him to the end. He had a dream, and in the dream he saw himself dedicated to Truth.

A stern yet kindly voice said to him, "Thomas Huxley, you are to maintain your intellectual honesty and self-respect; and no matter what comes, you are never to lend yourself to the cause that does not seem to you to be backed by the evidence of facts."

To the voice he answered: "While I live my motto shall be, truth for truth's own sake. I will regard the value of authority as being neither greater nor less than what it can prove itself to be worth. I will smite all humbugs, however big. I will tolerate everything but lying."

And he kept his word.

* * *

When he lost his beautiful little boy Noel, the good Charles Kingsley wrote him a sympathetic letter, in which he took occasion to refer to certain beliefs and to inquire if he entertained the same. Replying, Huxley said:

"If wife and child, and name and fame were all lost to me one after another, still I would not lie. The longer I live the more obvious it is to me that the most sacred act of a man's life is to say and to feel, 'I believe such and such to be true.' All the greatest rewards and all the heaviest penalties of existence cling about that act."

Finding no word in the books to properly express his position, he coined the word "Agnostic"—from the Greek "ag (not) and "gnosis" (knowing), meaning not knowing. "I do not know," he would say to those who asked him about the things of which he had no knowledge. Was it a question in Political Economy or Science, or Theology—it made no difference, his reply was ever the same, "I do not know."

And so Huxley lived and died—true to his beautiful dream, always searching for the Truth, always loving the Truth when he found it.

AFTER THE WEDDING

Whenever I'm out late my husband has to cook his own supper.

AS Jennie and her two women friends rode into town, Jennie told them she would have to be home in time to cook Tom's supper.

At this the women laughed, and one of them said, "Why don't you let him cook his own supper? Whenever I'm out late my husband cooks his own supper. He growls a lot about it, but what good does it do him? You just bet I wouldn't tie MYSELF down for any man.

"Gee Whiz! I can't see how a man would expect a woman to sit home all day counting her fingers and never going any place. Maybe some do, but not for me. I like a little speed and having some fun."

But she didn't know, or couldn't see, the happiness of the ones that ARE interested in their homes, their children and in helping their husbands to get ahead, which eventually means happiness for them all. The people that neglect their homes seem happy—for awhile—but, sooner or later, along comes the big smash, and then the lonesome misery with nothing left but the memories of what might have been.

The women friends of Jennie's suggested going to a matinee, but Jennie said she couldn't afford it. Then one of them suggested going to call on a woman friend of theirs, whom, they said, had lots of money, adding that they always had a good time when they went to her house. So they went to call on this friend.

As they went into the house Jennie could not help but notice all the beautiful furniture and compare it with her own little apartment that she and Tom were trying so hard to furnish. This new friend seemed to take quite a liking to Jennie. The maid brought them cocktails and the afternoon passed so pleasantly that Jennie didn't notice how late it was, and finally said she would have to hurry home and get Tom's supper. At this they all laughed again and thought it a good joke. On the way home one of her friends said, "Hi-Hum, wish I'd married a man with money like she did. She sure has a snap."

But Jennie just looked straight ahead.—H. C.

The True Story of the Battle of Bunker Hill

How many are there today who know what really happened on Bunker Hill on June 17, 1775?

Not many, we'll wager.

Therefore, tomorrow's Boston Sunday AMERICAN will print a page story of that great event, written by an historical expert after careful study of all available data.

The story is illustrated with a reproduction of the famous "cyclorama" painting, showing the scene as viewed from the top of the hill in all directions.

And this is only one of the notable features in tomorrow's Boston Sunday AMERICAN. Among the others will be:

An American Scholar Restores Shakespeare's Character.
Professor Wallace's remarkable analysis of 3,000,000 documents, which prove the immortal bard never to have been a roistering, reckless profligate and shows just where his famous theatre stood.

New Facts About Common Insects That Spread Disease and Death.
Remarkable scientific experiments which prove that destroying insect pests is the only hope of checking the great epidemic diseases.

What the Stars Predict for Us in Mexico.
An interesting astrological forecast prepared especially for this newspaper by Professor William H. Maccabee.

Distressingly Happy "Horrible Examples."
Very annoying conduct of society girls who have found "Love in a cottage," while the conventional members of their own set continue to flock to the divorce courts.

How Nordica's "Restless Pearl" Won Its Way Home.
The strange story of the famous singer's "Homesick" gem, its curious influence on her career, and the tragedy that at last ended its wanderings.

The Newest Walking Suits.
Lady Duff-Gordon, the famous Lucile of London and foremost creator of fashions in the world, describes the new "Trotting Dresses," which are so popular just now on the Paris boulevards.

Why Our Eating Habits Are All Wrong.
Professor Bergonie, the celebrated French authority, explains why we should not obey the call of appetite, but should eat at the hours of the day when the body energy is rising.

Encouraging Facts About the Air We Breathe.
Science discovers that there are few disease germs in the atmosphere, even when it is laden with the sewer gas which was formerly supposed to be so deadly.

How We Got Our Knives, Forks and Spoons.
Long and slow development of the utensils which finally cured man of the habit of eating with his fingers.
